

Thomas Tallis School - 2014

Non Uniform Day Friday 17 October in aid of the Save the School Foundation Nepal

We will be holding a non-uniform day on Friday 17 October 2014 to raise money for schools in for schools Nepal. These schools are based in rural areas and they face a lack of funding and basic resources.

Mr Binod Neupane, one of our staff in the Science Department, established his own school in Nepal in 1995 where he was the Head Teacher for 12 years. Through his hard work and dedication he has managed to work with a range of charitable organisations such as UNESCO (United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization) where he was promoting peace education as well as writing valuable resources for Nepalese teachers to use in their everyday lessons.

After coming to the UK in 2006, Binod was keen to continue to help improve the standard of education in Nepal by setting up a UK based charity in 2008 called 'Save the School Foundation'.

Through his charity he has managed to replace over 200 blackboards with modern whiteboards in deprived areas of Nepal, set up a library (with enough textbooks for all students taking A- levels) and raise enough money for a school to receive two computers and one projector. Furthermore, the charity provides stationery for 500 students every year and has done for the past six years.

Thomas Tallis, back in 2010, managed to raise enough money for 75 whiteboards for these schools, but Binod is asking for your help again. We are looking to raise as much money as possible for a second time to help Nepalese children access their right to a good education no matter where they live or what their background is.

We will be holding a non-uniform day on Friday 17 October where we will be asking all Staff and students to donate £1 (or more!) towards this very good cause.

Thank you in advance for digging into your pockets and helping us to raise enough money to make a difference to these children.
